Lead-Based Paint Hazard Control In Your Home

Protect Your Child and Home from Lead Paint Poisoning!

If you live in a home built before 1978, the paint in your house can be lead-based. Lead-based paint poses a great health risk on children under the age of six. These hazards may include behavioral problems and learning disabilities.

A simple blood test will let you know if your child is suffering from lead poisoning. This is one of the FREE services that are being offered with money from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). This FREE program is aimed at protecting your children and home from the hazards of lead-based paint.

This program will pay for the following services:

- Blood Lead Screening for children under the age of six (6)
- A home inspection
- Removal of the lead paint
- Follow-up inspection to assure that your home is free from lead paint

Eligibility Requirements:

- Homeowner with an income meeting the HUD low-to-moderate income guidelines
- Home built before 1978
- Live in one of the following zip codes: 79901, 79902, 79903, 79905, 79907, 79915, 79930
